

We Are Here

Wow I can't believe what God has already done on my journey. Honestly this past week of travel, getting to Romania was kind of a struggle but it has been more than I would have ever asked for. My squad took a 16 hour bus ride from launch to New Jersey and then flew into Portugal had a 18 hour layover and then finally to Romania. We are living in the missionary house that Raul shares with people that come help him. We have a fully functioning kitchen, toilet paper to wipe our bums, and a bed to sleep in. The language of Romania is hard to understand, all I can say right now is hello which is bunaziwa, but I think I have plenty of time to learn a couple more.

First day of ministry was crazy amazing. We got to go to a regional town and give eye glasses, share the hope of Jesus and give a bible to people in need. I got to Evangelize with a translator which was Raul's wife, Anna. Guys, let me tell you I have never done this and I DEFINITELY need to work on this but i'm so excited to learn. My translator, Anna was a great teacher in fact she basically did most of the work. The thing that I loved most about Anna was she made me think about what to say if I got stuck or even if I said something that sounded right to me she sometimes corrected me on how I could say it differently. I got to talk to a total of two men and three women. One man that I talked to was actually a believer and went to the church that we were at. This was very awesome because I got to pray over a brother in Christ half way across the world. I also got to lead a women to Jesus in prayer.

Man what a blessing.

I also have a cool ministry opportunity for my supporters that want to be apart of ministry in Romania.

We are passing out New Testament bibles to the local community. Inside of these bibles will be an insert. On that insert, will be the testimony of a born again believer... in ENGLISH!

The inserted testimony will also have the local church's phone number with "Call for translation" written in Romanian. If this post has sparked your interest, please consider messaging or emailing me your testimony! It will be printed onto one of the inserts and be used in spreading the gospel all the way over here in Draganesti!!

There are many more details that I want to share but they are still being prayed about. So if you guys could also pray for me that I would be open to grow and learn what the lord has for me that would be amazing. I also can't put in to words how blessed I am by my supporters. Without y'all I could have never gotten this far. So I will pray for you guys as well that you would keep on giving your all you the kingdom of God and lean not on your own understanding. Even if you think God is telling you to step outside your comfort zone trust in him because he has such such such way better things in store for you.

I love you guys
